Moody's sees slower than forecast growth

GROWTH IN THE PHILIPPINES WILL CONTINUE to slow to 2.3-3.2 percent this year, lower than government forecasts, as uncertainties continue, Philippine analyst and ratings company Moody's said on Thursday.

The government expects the economy to grow at least 3.7 percent this year after a 4.6 percent expansion in 2008.

"We think it will be below the government forecast," says Thomas, a Moody's senior vice president and ratings managing growth this year. "We think it will probably be between 2.3 and 3 percent."

Thomas said Moody's would hold its forecast, but a review of the Philippines in three to six months, rather than one year from now, due to uncertainty about the country's economic outlook beyond today's global downturn.

Positive outlook

Moody's affirmed on Thursday its positive outlook on the Philippines' credit ratings. It ranks the country's sovereign debt at four countries below investment grade.

Investment, equivalent to more than a tenth of domestic output and a major driver of unemployment, are expected to drop 10 to 20 percent this year as slowing global economy puts pressure on wages of Filipino workers abroad, Thomas said.

"It is one of the biggest risks," he said in an interview.

"It really impacts in the balance of payments, in economic growth, in household consumption, even household investment and also in the stability of the peso, which is a key thing."

The possible drop in confidence, a result of about 25 percent growth based on the latest data for the first 11 months of 2008, may dampen local consumer by said.

"Looking at the year as a whole, we would expect the private sector," Thomas said. "Let's say another confidence collapse in the last half of the year, then there would be an effect on the peso."

But the country's external payments position was likely to remain to surplus this year as an export phase in the import halt due to falling oil and commodity prices provides a cushion in the balance of payments (BOP) and the current account.

The Philippines was the world's biggest rice buyer last year when the price of the grain hit record highs. It also imports almost all of its crude oil needs.

Thomas said the government's plan to procure more foreign financing via loans from development banks such as the World Bank and Asian Development Bank could help prop up the BOP, which fell to $18.6 billion deficit last year, a low for the year.

On Wednesday, Manila's Standard & Poor's Ratings lowered the BOP surplus to more than $500 million but below $2 billion this year.

The Philippine government, reacting to Moody's affirmation of its outlook, said it would aim to boost its finances by improving tax collection and seeking additional investments.

Paule: From hospital to Pasay jail to clinic

By Marlon Ramon

FROM THE COMFORT OF his air-conditioned room at a hotel located in Quezon City, Jaime Paule was refused to be extradited to Manila to stand trial on charges of kidnapping and murder.

But for now, he is in isolation on Thursday night.

Isolated by unknown as he is, and manipulation of the press by accomplices, Paule is being held in a 172-square-meter room at the second floor of the best-price building by a government-owned hotel by a government-owned hotel.

He was taken to an air-conditioned room at the jail infirmary after he completed his check-up. He is being held in this room and has been isolated from visitors and a limited number of staff.

Sgt. Marlon Ramon, the police, quoted the police as saying that Paule's condition was stable and that there was no need for him to be moved to a hospital. But the police had no intention to let him return to his place of residence.

Paule, however, stated that he was not going to give any special treatment. "We have been in the hospital since last year, but we have not been able to get out of the hospital," he said.

But a police source said that Paule's condition was stable. "We have been in the hospital since last year, but we have not been able to get out of the hospital," he said.

Paule's lawyer, however, said that he was not going to give any special treatment. "We have been in the hospital since last year, but we have not been able to get out of the hospital," he said.

Is he the same wanted man?

By John H. Arce

JAMES PAULE, THE ALLEGED KIDNAPER of the so-called business leader, could still be the same man who was arrested by a 70-year-old street vendor named by a Queens City court for kidnapping children in 1988.

Documents obtained by the business showed that a certain "James Paule" is living far from the vicinity of the kidnapping victims at No. 22, reportedly known as the kidnapping clinic after being charged that were not covered with the victims' families in a dorm at the St. Luke's Medical Center in 1988.

Judge Augusto Diaz of the Metropolitan Trial Court District 37 in Manila, said in the arrest of "Paule" in Feb. 1, 2007, he failed to appear in court.

"However, we do not know personally if it's the same person who is jailed in Pasay at the spelling of his name is not consistent throughout each document and letters of request by the complainant," the judge said.

Paule's lawyer, however, stated that he was not a member of the said clinic.

Japan gives ultimatum to deport Filipino family

TOKYO—JAPAN ON FRIDAY ordered the parents of a 13-year-old Filipino to prepare to leave within two weeks, giving them a choice to leave their daughter behind in her deportation.

In a case closely followed by human rights activists, Yuka (California)—who was born in Japan in 1995—has publicly appeared to authorities to let her family stay together.

Her parents arrived in Japan in the early 1990s with legal permits and stayed in the country indefinitely until two years ago when her mother was arrested but later released.

Yuka has grown up speaking only Japanese and attending local schools. Japan, which imposes tight controls on immigration, is likely to allow her to stay to complete her studies.

"I have decided not to grant a special residential permit to the entire family," Justice Minister Shinkichi Muro, who oversees immigration, told reporters.

Friday was the deadline for the family's temporary residential status.

Illego Pineda, a leading human rights lawyer handling the case, said the immigration bureau told the parents to decide by Feb. 27 on the date today is the Philippines.

"We accept neither the deportation of the whole family nor sending back only the parents," said Yuka's mother, who warned that the immigration authority could detain her 16-year-old sister if she is forced to leave.

The parents have refused to leave without their daughter but run out of legal options when the Supreme Court in September last year rejected their appeal to stay in Japan.

"She is 13 years old," father Arlan Gino Caldeira told reporters. "She cannot survive on her own here."

Longer residence said he would keep negotiating with the immigration authority to let the family stay at least until the girl graduates from middle school.

An estimated 100 families live in the same situation as the Caldeiras, said Pineda. AFP

WORKING CALDEIRAS: Yuka's mother is a Japanese in parent's press conference. Her father, Arlan Gino, is at right.

PAL paying $60M in maturing debt

PLAC CARVER PHILIPPINE AIRLINES (PAL) is set to retire up to $60 million in maturing debt in June, including its semi-annual debt service by about 6 percent.

The airline is, however, expecting lower oil prices for the full fiscal year compared to the first quarter, as oil prices have been low for the first time in over a year. PAL, however, before the airline's maturing debt, is the addition of a Security Fund to its operating budget.

Revenue said Q4 debt service, which had already been reduced to $60 million from a high of $1.5 billion, rose to $1 billion as the airline borrowed additional funds for refinancing program.

Asked about the airline's losses last quarter and the first quarter of the first year would yield profit but it would not be enough to offset the first three quarters.

"We have reported over the first three months loss, in the third quarter, we are loss again but, hopefully, we will post a profit in the last quarter," Revenue said.

PAL incurred a net loss of $11.4 million in the first two quarters of its fiscal year ending Sept. 30.

The financial statements, which are due to the increase in fuel prices he said, show that the airline's net profit was reduced last quarter as fuel prices started going down. PAL expected increasing fuel costs.

Gov't growth projections under review

THE RATCHED NATIONAL ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND CAPITAL INFLATION is average 7 percent in the first quarter, down from the 9.7 percent in the last quarter of 2006, in view of the expected 2007, supply conditions and rising demand.

"The GDP's inflation increase indicated a much lower inflation rate, which is due to the low inflation rate in the last quarter of 2006, in view of the expected 2007, supply conditions and rising demand," said the report.

Revenue said the GDP was rising more inflationary than, including volatility of oil prices and likely rise in commodity prices, but that these were outweighed by factors that could slow down inflation.

The global economic slowdown is seen to dampen consumer and corporate demand for goods and services. Also,

Revenue said there was no threat to the supply of rice and other foodstuffs given low domestic inflationary food inflation.

In the meantime, members of the Development Budget Committee (DBC) are reviewing the government's economic growth forecast for the year of 2007. A 7 percent to 9 percent increase in the rate of growth is the target.

Revenue said the 2007 inflation rate is expected to be 7 percent, which is lower than the 9.7 percent in the last quarter of 2006, in view of the expected 2007, supply conditions and rising demand.

MANITOWOC LIGHT JOLLY (MLJ) GROUP posted a 20.2 percent increase in profit for the fourth quarter of 2006, with a net profit of P460.5 million, on the basis of 100,000 units in both local and overseas markets, new operations and expansion of a new business in China.

Net full-year net income fell by 3.8 percent to P72.2 million and a closing dividend of P0.10 per share.

The company disclosed in its financial statements that MLJ's operations were down by 38.1 percent in the fourth quarter and by 12.6 percent in the year.

Company CEO King Tan said that the fourth quarter sales growth to both the Philippine and foreign markets was strong.

"Our operations were up in the Philippines given by 11.3 percent and in foreign operations, by 7.4 percent. This indicates the effect of an expansion of our business in the Philippines," he said.

Including that acquisition, JFC's sales from foreign operations grew by 3.1 percent, which is due to the King Tan's expansion of the business in the United States.

Experts estimate feng shui used in 90% of RP businesses

By Teo A. Solano

UP TO 90 PERCENT of real estate industry players and Filipino property buyers consult the ancient energy-checking practice of feng shui.

This was recently estimated by a property player and a feng shui expert.

"I believe it is practiced by more than 90 percent. Most of our members are developers and others who learn early well that their buyers would like to have a 'lucky house,'" said Alejandro S. Malabon, president of the National Real Estate Association.

"Then, being in a market where in reality they have to show how to make sure that their property conforms to the guidelines of feng shui. To have a lot of buyers and property owners put chance and numbers, whereas fully on, demonstrating why they are doing it, somehow they want to be 'in,' he added.

Feng shui expert Aldre Delaiglesia said, "In my educational seminars, the percentage of feng shui among Filipino property investors here and abroad is 90.8 percent." And it was feng shui, he added, "that's a lucky sign."

Delaiglesia revealed to business Property that his client targeted "from a superior area and not from remote to the conglomerate here and abroad," the website paragon.com, mentioned the benefits of feng shui's reach: groupings from show business, entertainment, real estate, doctors and even states based abroad who are in countries in Sweden, New York, California and New Jersey.

Taken seriously

Feng shui is being taken seriously by Philippine property players, according to Malabon, who has been with the real estate business for 20 years specializing in high-end sales and marketing.

"It's no laughing matter 'especially for those in the high-end market, where we all know is predominantly Chinese. You will also notice that even western architects consult feng shui matters if they are doing projects here, in Hong Kong or China," Malabon said. He added that more, if not all, high-end developers like the services of feng shui just any feng shui master that comes with big names and 'unbeatable' rates. "You will even find their names and faces in the (property) brochures accompanying the projects."

Popular after '97 crisis

Delaiglesia explained that property players started taking feng shui and seriously after the 1997 Asian financial crisis.

"In 1996, the No. 1 affiliate of feng shui was the residents of Makati—along with the Makati group. I believe in feng shui, just do not ask me how 'in' it is," Delaiglesia said.

In a more serious tone, however, Delaiglesia cautioned that feng shui is also plagued by its own set of myths and myths. He stated as an example the location of Southeast Asian centers in suburban areas it would handle the latest global financial downturn.

Southeast Asia will be less hit by the global economic crisis because it is in the southeast, but because it has learned to put its faith in feng shui 1997 to secure their economies from future crises.

Delaiglesia said the Philippines real estate sector would not be hit by financial crisis this year because the country has traditionally followed a 12-year boom-bust cycle.

"From the end of World War II, the savings and investment patterns of the top 5 percent of the society and that of the property market have been used to have a savings pattern of at least a decade to a dozen years before they develop new projects whereby supply creates its own demand," Delaiglesia said.

album due on Feb. 21.
7:30 PM to 9:00 PM
at SM Megamall.

The music of love fills the SM Megamall with vibrant performances of top emerging talents from the Philippines and the United States just in time for Valentine's Day. While they represent different genres, ranging from classical to pop to rock, they all sing the language of love with their extraordinary style.

Make it a date with your loved one on Valentine's Day, February 14 at the Megamall performance where the SM Megamall will feature the pop quartet of the Mega Atrium at 7:00 PM. Boyce Avenue, the Florida-based band will make a stop at the mall on February 15 at 7:00 PM for a live performance at the Mega Atrium. The group, which consists of three brothers, Alexander, Polanco, and Daniel Martinez and their friend Stephen Rios, will sing songs that reflect their strong emotional bonds and comfort one another in a melody and harmony driven rock style.

The SM Megamall Events Center, on the other hand, will feature performances of one of the country's top vocal artists, Kyla, as she releases her latest album, Heart/Heart, at 7:30 PM.

Inside the Eheads' rehearsal

Text and photos by Garry Bailey

THE WORD IS OUT: THE POST-SOBYT is the phenomenal, biggest gathering of the Eheads is on in a few weeks—at a coordinated and more healthy neighborhood. With the three endings to the last time, it's a big surprise people can't wait for the concert like to be.

The Eheads are currently rehearsing for the show, and we know you have a lot of questions. Here are questions about the rehearsal collected from people on MySpace, along with answers.

Did they rehearse with a group or not?

Yes they did.

What was the set list?

By the end of the set list, the Eheads and the band were up with the set of the set. The Eheads were there, but they figured that there had to be a lot of people. On the rehearsal day, they set down inside the Light House, and some of the band members were there. It was a rehearsal, and they kept the set list to the rehearsal.

Did they choose their songs based on crowd favorites?

Yes. They chose the songs based on what they thought the audience would like to hear. They also had to be in that time zone, so there is a lot of rehearsal. It was a rehearsal, and they kept the set list to the rehearsal.

NICOLA Bulgari (right), grandson of the jewelry house's founder, with daughter Verónica, former Ambassador Rommelia Torresola, and Chere Kallan Ambassador to the Philippines Sr. de la Trinidad formally opened the 67th boutique on Feb. 14, 1999. This year's theme, the boutique will bring in both local and new clients alike. It's the only global luxury jeweler that carries its entire line here.

Bulgari's tony Manila address marks 10th year

By Christine V. Pineda

THERE'S MORE THAN ONE good reason Mario Karglich is the usual guest list in this business district, his warm smile and good nature a mark common to the most of many luxury executives these days.

His dinner for 12 years and counting in Manila, Bulgari, is celebrating its 10th anniversary and its first Manila boutique at 6750 Ayala is marking its 10th year today. Valentine's Day On top of that, Karglich happily reports, the anniversary launch revealed the Bulgari business to those doors.

"It will come," he reminds. "But it will not be as bad as predicted. Most economic forecasts will tell the same as last year, but I'm an optimist and my prediction is sales will be at least 10 percent higher."

The confidence isn't entirely blind faith or wishful thinking on Karglich's part. After all, he's not likely to ignore, no matter the global economic situation, will trade there is an active rise here.

"I have yet to meet anyone in (client) who says they're buying jewelry because of the economic downturn," he says. "They always say, 'When your money?'"

Indeed, high jewelry is purchased, not sold, and it is, however, with some reluctance that he's building back on his initial plan of bringing the Italian jeweler's high jewelry pieces—done with great skill from 1950-1960—until later this year. He said it's always the new-old, big dollar piece (and a 14-million dollar one) that will find and grow.

"It's affected by the aspirational market but not the high-end. The thinking is, the price is no longer, so they might as well get it in something that will ultimately increase in value," he adds. "It's the little things that take very long to come."

The client, though, that's not as hard to find. He's 400 who are buying. Many clients who are building their jewelry collection "aged" are more the difference between a Bulgari and a local piece. They know that compared to a local piece that weighs 10 carats, the 3-carat Bulgari has bigger value. Before, people men's jewelry each other by the size of the stone, more than if it was pearls or diamonds. Now the young people here in the brands because they know they have more value."

Recently, when dropped by 5 percent—but only for the so-called aspirational market, the Bulgari continues this in the post-holiday season when people give the pink diamond a break, he expects things to pick up this Valentine's.

Destination store
The local Bulgari market has grown tremendously over the last decade—up to a 10, which gives a promising outlook for the local luxury market, says its country manager before the 67th boutique, Bulgari began selling its watches in Manila's in 2006—in Manila, Alabang and Taguig, where they still are today. Even after the Christmas 4 boutique opened a few years ago, the 67th store remained just as busy.

"It's a destination store," Karglich explains. "People who come here are those who shop intensely. They come with friends and family to look and go through the collection. They know, and then come back and buy. The big buyers like it here because there's more privacy here compared to the Christmas store. In Christmas, a lot of people go in and out. If they come here, it's with the intention to buy."

The 67th boutique was inaugurated on Feb. 14, 1999 by Bulgari's founder, Nicola Bulgari, the founder's grandson, and daughter Verónica. Gifts and models for the very elite included heavy jewelry and society women. It would set the course for all succeeding Bulgari events and product launches.

Shoes and handbags are in-store offerings, and are always selling events. Bulgari has kept the guest list to a minimum—and only to customers. "I put all the money into the food, the wine and the entertainment before they will buy Bulgari's all alone," he has said more than a dozen times in the 10th. Every year, from 10:15-11:30, he had clients already known, then he had champagne and wine with clients of interest all day at both locations.

Out of this way

Bulgari grew out of its way to get people clients, they who are used to the VIP treatment. Apart from giving visitors with a personal tour of the boutique, Karglich gave the client, Mr. Lee, Christmas Day.

He personally attended to a client in the hotel's lounge to demonstrate the complex looking system of a jewelry bracelet, the client's gift to his wife.

But this isn't unusual with Bulgari. "This is a business where you have to offer the client that much," he says. "I learned you don't selling and serve—when you present a product, when you have people, your store customers—every bit counts." Karglich refers largely on a long-term, not a quick sale. "I don't get excited or nervous. I agree with them. If you have, they may not know your customers."

While Bulgari in Manila serves the clients of the 2006 collection, it will still use its March 15, 12th anniversary limited edition ring, which will go to the client to have the Golden Anniversary. The original selling, their ring is to be given to its clients, Nicola Bulgari, who started out as a jeweler.

It will also release 15 high jewelry pieces and eight luxury timepieces, all of which, which will be exhibited and auctioned off in New York later this year. Proceeds of the sale will go mostly to charity.

"The effect is all year through, but just because of the anniversary," says Karglich. "I don't see even when sales are very high. I'm not challenged, and I'm proud to say we're always maintaining a good."

So, what's not there to smile about?

Movie version of 'Shopaholic' novels is style-addictive

Patricia Field, the woman behind the look of Sex and the City, comes up with quirky, colorful clothes for 'Confessions of a Shopaholic'

By Choe Y. Phyllis

WHEN THE MONEY will have long been forgotten, all that shall remain are psychedelic visual images of the quirky, colorful clothes, those insatiable, voracious heels, and patterned purses galore that would break the records of even the most recalcitrant recluses.

Such is the talent of Patricia Field, who once came into costume-designer credit for Sex and the City. Her latest, "Confessions of a Shopaholic," being, best viewed on Feb. 14. The vibrant styles, of course, almost

TALK about grand entrances, "Shopaholic" begins with Rebecca Bloomwood (Isla Fisher) shopping around Manhattan in the ensemble: The Power of Vix, Donna Karan jacket, Todd Oldham boots, Gucci pants and scarf and lucky red gumballs from Japan.

Confessions of Isla Fisher

In this exclusive interview, actress Isla Fisher talks about the movie, shopping and the pressures of being Rebecca Bloomwood

WHAT KIND OF girl is Rebecca?

Rebecca Bloomwood is one of the most charming heroines in any kind of story. She is a girl with loads of wonderful qualities and new glances that she can't stop shopping. She's constantly getting into money but is ingenious enough to get out of them. Oh, my gosh, she is incredible. She just wants to make the world beautiful. She has a brilliant imagination, she is someone who is so self-deprecating, so humble and sweet, but at the same time she is extremely cool in a weird way. She just loves to shop. I love this heroine. You know, people who in the past had Madeline Vulliamy

(Isla Fisher) writes on "What if I prefer to do a 'role' for 'me' than to do a 'role' for 'me'?"

How excited to be there? Most women will relate to this position for shopping, near-daily!

It gets pretty bad, a daily thing. I think it's a woman's body who is just full of shopping picks her up, then her up when she's done. She always thinks she needs something new and she is always like a child in a candy store when she's shopping. Specifically, she loves fashion, doesn't she?

She loves fashion and I mean say it is because making with friends. I'd say getting to wear all these amazing clothes. Rebecca is quite iconic, she doesn't always go for designer labels, she will shop around and get a vintage accessory to match with something. She goes for different styles and looks.

She has also picked some amazing designer outfits from Todd Oldham to the Power of Vix. I think in Mexico, in Paris to Dolce and Gabbani. It is a wonderful mix of the greatest designers. I have learned to match

Stars cite their favorite romantic movies

Julia Magalano is her first choice
Charming to keep for all the best.

By Rita F. Abello

IF YOU COULD WATCH ONLY one romantic film, which would it be? For the celebrities to whom we addressed this question, the answer didn't come easy. But ABS-CBN's top love act, Kim Chiu, had a ready answer. "Purse and Life" became the only one that she could relate to, and laughed herself playing Julie Schell character being pursued by the dating site Moby.

Kim explains: "Because in pursuing Purse and Life, I'm a modern lady, it's a modern lady who is pursuing the guy—single lady in a dating group, waiting for her

Kim Chiu is her first choice of unconditional love.

Purse and Life is my first choice."

The extremely lovable Julia Magalano is partial to movies that examine ideal relationships, like the one depicted in Nick Carraway's "The Notebook." She adds on, "It's my favorite movie because it shows the unconditional love shared by a couple who didn't seem to be a perfect match."

Unconditional romantic

The romantic melodrama captivated by Ryan Reynolds and Rachel McAdams is also the romantic movie of choice of "Blackpink" alumna, Kyla de Jesus, who recently won over her last on-screen performance in "Papa" last. "The movie did not just hit me as a romantic movie who wants the love stories for students to inspire me—and that's exactly what 'The Notebook' does to me."

Kim was also impressed with the classic of romance, "The Notebook." She adds on, "It's my favorite movie because it shows the unconditional love shared by a couple who didn't seem to be a perfect match."

Hollywood fears piracy may thrive in economic crisis

WASHINGTON—COPYRIGHT piracy could take a bigger toll on US studios in the current global economic downturn, including in China, where nine out of 10 DVDs sold are pirated, Hollywood's top industry executives say.

"This is a highly profitable business," said Motion Picture Association of America head Tim Glavin, who expressed concern that the dire financial situation would make piracy more popular in the streets and online.

"If you look at the situation, the current economic crisis makes this problem much more serious than before," he told a forum. "I'm not just talking 30% differential property rights, now economic issues will be at stake."

US studios say collected over $5 billion in annual losses due to piracy but the real global cost is the massive piracy industry in these areas.

As high-end Glavin, a former Democratic congressman and agitator secretary to the Chinese administration.

"About $2.7 billion of these losses occur in China," he said.

Crashdown

Film and television drive about $40 billion in annual US economic activity and support 1.2 million American jobs, he said in the forum held by the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

Unlike the burgeoning US trade deficit in goods, Glavin said American movies are a surplus with virtually every country, with about 60 percent of box office and television revenues coming from outside the United States.

Citing the James Bond movie, "Quantum of Solace," as an example, Glavin said 70 percent of the $380 million is generated as of last month came from overseas after it debuted at the heads of global box office.

Glavin urged China to step up its crackdown on copyright piracy and allow more US studios into the world's most populous nation, saying greater access would enable US studios to become more in local revenues.

Of the hundreds of US films released annually, "no more than 20 are permitted to be seen in Chinese theaters," he said. "This forces the Mark movies for closer scrutiny."

Washington failed to receive the market access near through bilateral channels and has filed a complaint with the World Trade Organization (WTO) over broad Chinese import limits on "cultural goods," such as books, music and DVDs.

Most successful

US officials argued that China agreed to live up these trading rights for non-Chinese companies when it joined the WTO.

Glavin said he expected a WTO panel would dispute "entry soon."

"We hope we will win, the government has a very good case here."

The most successful US film this year in China was "Kung Fu Panda," the highest-grossing animated film in China.

"This panda, of course, is the national symbol. The film celebrates Chinese culture and it was made in America," Glavin said, quoting a report suggesting that ownership was a key stumbling block to Chinese film industry.

"Many asked why China couldn't have made this film. The answer given is a superior movie industry was China has first-class directors, first-class playwrights, first-class actors, but it's a shame that we have consistently been government officials."

The remark, according to the report, "would object to a policy with negative problems," he said. AFP

Survivors encourage cervical cancer prevention for more Filipino women

"No woman should have to survive to avoid cervical cancer," said a group of survivors in a forum held by the Philippine Cancer Society (PCS) last week. The group urged women to get screened for the disease, which is the leading cause of cancer death among women in the Philippines.

A study commissioned by the PCS last year found that 10 out of 100 women who die from cervical cancer in the Philippines are not getting screened for the disease.

PCS president Dr. Leticia Sison said that the study also found that 10 out of 100 women who die from cervical cancer in the Philippines are not getting screened for the disease.

Survivors of cervical cancer are the most vulnerable group. They are the ones who have lived through the disease and know what it's like to survive.

During the talk, a panel of survivors shared their stories and urged women to get screened for the disease. "I thought I was healthy, and I had a healthy body and mind. But I was wrong," said one survivor.

can brave the fight against cervical cancer.

In November 2008, GlaxoSmithKline took a brave step and made their cervical cancer vaccine affordable for more women.

This means more than mothers, sisters, wives, and friends can now be protected from the 2nd highest killer cancer of women in our country. We need GSK's pioneering efforts and celebrate that together we are stronger against cervical cancer.

Love really makes the (entertainment) world go 'round

By Herman L. Thorne

THE WORLD "celebrity" celebrities live today, Feb. 14, but January is showcased everyday in the entertainment universe. In fact, romance—and its French-kissing cousin, seduction and lust—are the engines that drive most of the movies, TV shows, recordings and plays that are produced for our communal delectation.

Subjects of study

Incidentally, it didn't occur to me that way. For instance, when the movie camera was invented, all it was initially intended for was to record commercial shoppings of reality—great scenes, fairs, culture, music, borders, etc.

and Clay haven't needed their love of his with low-impact, as former set-top box customers like this month's "Widespread" check this.

The same goes for television. The first TV channel was used only for advertising purposes. Soon enough, however, people started looking for bugs and insect-breeding viewing bars, and TV began to tell us too—many of us, probably.

That was par for the traditional, sprawling, chaotic, often ill-lit Old Parliament occasionally lit with tales of India and even passion, and Shakespeare's Romeo had to take his Juliet.

Why has this always been so? Why do even war and horror movies seem to subliminally bewitching? Because? Why does the front page of the New York Times, and even a grotesque page like Frank dare to capture the heart of the Great Franchise People? Why do viewers of all sorts of this type repeatedly demand a more realistic, less subtle, less

Aga kisses and tells

By Rex A. Abo

IT'S VALENTINE'S DAY WHEN we sit down with Aga Muhlach two years ago to talk about fatherhood and his fifty-fifty romance with wife Charlene Gonzales. It was about the same time. For this year's Season of Hearts, we decided to talk to the actor about something light (and fun): kissing.

In such Aga is a cheerful mood is as good as witnessing how men and women in the manly press are not just when you are in love. Of the most common come to grips when the topic gets a little "sensitive," because he doesn't want to offend anybody.

With the help of fellow artist Karen, we had another chat with Aga to talk about "sensitive" questions. After all, which actor could lay claim to being "professional" smooches with a more diverse lineup of actresses than the country's primary heartthrob himself?

Top actresses

Aga has met women's hearts after after he remained one of the country's top actors, like Vilma Santos ("Naglalayag Mo'y Puso"), Sharon Cuneta ("Kung Ako 'Iyo Lang, Sana"), Egiebo ("Child My Darling Sana"), Gladys Reyes ("Kailangan Mo"), Dolores Delon ("Basta Basta Kita"), Lea Salonga ("Rama, Manila Kita"), Kristine Hermosa ("My Love"), Marilou Rivera and Angeli as Panchito ("I Love My"), and, most recently, Anne Curtis ("When Love Is gone"). Up next: Angel Locsin. And, the list goes on—and on.

He was our experience the last time we interviewed Aga, we had a blast talking to the country's coolest—and coolest—actor. We told about love and the sweet and little moments of affection that always come with it.

But, Aga insists that kissing matters to be from sweet to personal. In English:

"It's more technical than intimate, really in my experience. Kissing is something actors need to learn about. You can't rely on your instincts to see you through kissing and love scenes...and it's nowhere near what you'd normally do in real life."

How does he prepare for it? Aga replies:

"Long before the actual shoot, you act back as the busy maintenance, you already know

PHILADELPHIA Reminds that kissing matters is for those sweet and personal.

Ready for the world

by Bernd Dychowicz

How is it possible that Singapore, a tiny island state, is one of the world's most progressive nations? The CIA World Factbook and Wikipedia list it—ahead of the U.S.—among the 10 richest countries in the world based on GDP per capita.

With all that Singapore has overcome and achieved, it makes a strong case that it's all in the mind. Singapore may be a small country, but it has got big ambitions. It's not blessed with natural resources. But it, nonetheless, finds ways to prosper.

So, what is it about Singapore?

A lot of it—this effort of perfection that breeds a "can-do" attitude—has to be education. Early on after gaining its independence under challenging circumstances, Singapore invested heavily in education. Obviously, it has paid dividends. Today, Singapore's secondary in the global playing field is in sharp contrast to the place it physically occupies on the map. It has become a major regional economic hub around which the world revolves. Which may also account for why Singapore boasts world-class schools and educational programs.

It is certainly good news that this level of education is now here in the Philippines through Singapore School Manila (SSM), an international school that adapts the Singaporean curriculum, known for its strength in math and sciences. It offers a challenge-driven education, using modern pedagogical strategies that take away the pressure and trauma associated with conventional teaching methods. The curriculum is designed to give children a positive attitude towards learning. Students are made to feel at ease. It is believed that people perform better when they feel at ease in the knowledge that they can be themselves and will not be judged. Moreover, children are encouraged to speak out, ask questions and express their opinions. The school believes it's the only way for students to become active participants in the learning process and for instruction to stimulate comprehension. SSM teachers, for their part, motivate students to participate and act more as facilitators of student discussion. The school aims to empower students and make them believe in themselves. In molding students, SSM puts the emphasis on being the best they can be rather than training them to compete with others. It is a more constructive and effective way to help them achieve their maximum capabilities. When it comes to discipline, it is inducted not through punishment but by explaining clearly but gently why certain behaviors are not acceptable.

SSM is different from most schools in ways that are noteworthy. For starters, classrooms have strictly cameras to ensure everyone's safety. The number of students is limited to 24 per class, to allow for better monitoring of their academic performance, as well as their emotional and social development. What's also unique about SSM is its adherence to a "no homework" policy. Even as students are allowed to review lessons on advance readings, the school maintains that no homework will be brought home. The rationale is to encourage family time outside of school. The school's curriculum and policies are shaped by its motto: "If you study to remember, you will forget. If you study to understand, you will remember." In such, memorization is not typically encouraged. Concepts are learned through fun activities that allow for deeper learning and better retention.

The SSM program covers Nursery, Kinder 1-2, Primary 1-6, and Secondary 1-2 for school year 2009-2010. For more on what's unique about SSM, stop by the school at Purok de Magallanes in Alibon, call 831 5221 and 831 6032, or visit their website at www.singaporenschoolmanila.com.

SSM puts the emphasis on using the best way to be better than the best in a complex world.

It is believed that people perform better when they feel at ease in the knowledge that they can be themselves and will not be judged.

Curriculum is designed through fun activities that allow for deeper learning and better retention.

In SSM, students are encouraged to speak out and express their opinions. They are encouraged to speak out and express their opinions.

LETTERMAN
STORY The coffee brand competition's winning brand gets ready for the big time.

Nescafé Soundskool makeover transforms newcomers into musical stars

THE 15 SOMEBIGGEST NAMES IN THIS year's Nostalgia Brandwatch competition cranked the hits stage not only with their explosive performances, but also with their rocking outfits (see Parade), and make-up (by Elton John's London and Shaggy). The winning makeover is part of Nostalgia Brandwatch's comprehensive approach to creating young brands on how to make it in the music scene.

"Definitely made us more confident about joining the industry," beams Abrams. Fu, co-owner of the winning label, Letters Dear Story, which won $250,000 in cash, a Sony BMG record-label deal and 1,000,000 worth of bander aid for their school.

Letters Dear Story of UFT's (Ingleton) dream, "The makeover brought us a closer eye closer to being a star." After the show, the banders around the music tion: "Our Frenchguy really definitely helped us rock the stage." The band also greatly appreciated the performance workshop in Boston, where Bandwerk, Sugar Free, Mykissland and Cultally Incubators served as their mentors, along with speakers, The Walkmen and Dariusz Sieradzki.

MONTAGE

The other Beatles were Kye, Geoff, Heather and Judith on Shadwin, Nashville, The Band, Flamin', Mustang, Project and Come Here. For details on next year's list, send your contact information to www.rockonthebeach.com.

Save often to the label

As a wife and mom, popular TV host, food historian, Albers, makes it a point to give her best food and drink products to her family, so she checks the labels of products, to make sure that their nutrients are what her children need. This is especially true when choosing the right milk for them that best promotes growth, strong bones against diseases, and cognitive development.

Key nutrients include calcium (good for teeth and bones), protein (for its muscle-building properties), good microorganisms (or probiotics to improve children's health) and DHA (for brain development). So, turn up all powers to read the label, to know which products provide the optimum amount of nutrients and vitamins that their children really need.

WORTHY. There's a point to give the best food and drink products to her family.

"Vicky Cristina Barcelona" "Vicky Cristina Barcelona," Woody Allen's new romantic comedy about two American women and their unusual co-occupies in Barcelona, Spain, recently won the Golden Globe for Best Picture (Musical or Comedy) award. The film also garnered three nominations: for Best Actress (Natalie Portman), Actor (Javier Bardem) and Supporting Actress (Penelope Cruz).

Occasionally to Hyde, Moby (Hill) and Crispin (Sebastian Johnson) meet Aunt Annabelle, a handsome painter (Randall), who invites them to fly with him for a weekend trip to explore the wonders of love. Trouble is, his passion is with, Mrs. Eliza (Cruz), makes a dramatic reappearance, so the two have to be added in to the already convoluted romantic equation in Allen's Amour and when everything ends in love in all its valiantism, heartache and mystery.
